Andover Students.

GENTLEMEN:—

Realizing that many of you are unaware of our excellent facilities for supplying your needs in fine "Ready-to-wear" Garments and Men's Fine Furnishings, we venture this reckless expenditure to inform you of that fact. Particularly do we solicit your inspection of our Spring Suits of our own manufacture. These garments are made and trimmed as they should be, and the fact that an experienced tailor is always in attendance to make any changes in the fit a customer may desire, makes them equal when so fitted, to custom work, while the price is much less. While selecting our outtings, we have specially considered the fact that you want the best. We are agents for Lawrence, Andover and Methuen of the celebrated Dunlap Hats, Eagle Shirts and Hathaway Shirts. Do not fail to see our stock of Trousers of our Own Manufacture. Prices $4 to $8. They are equal to custom garments and the price is much less. For general excellence and moderate prices our Men's Outfitting Departments have gained an enviable reputation throughout New England. We shall appreciate the pleasure of an opportunity to show the many good things in our stock. A pleasant ride on the electric to Lawrence and a visit to our place will verify the truth of our statements and prove the folly of going to Boston for your garments and furnishings.

Prof. Sprague Smith, who lectured at Abbot Academy during the present school year, is to revisit Spain the coming summer, making an extended tour, in order to collect additional material for illustrating the life, art, literature and history of the peninsula.

Nathan Carp of Lowell, a peddler of dry goods, was disposing of his stock in Ballardvale Wednesday. He had no license, so Chief of Police Cheever invited him to go with him and appear before Judge Poor to answer to the charge of peddling without a license. He was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $25. He settled.

Eighteen candidates for the appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point were examined at the Phillips Academy Science building by Prin. Bancroft, Dr. C. G. Carleton of Lawrence, and Percy Parker of Lowell. The appointment is made by Congressman Stevens. The result is not yet known. M. Harlan Nims and Thomas M. Lunan were the only Andover boys who took the examination.

The Pumphard Cadets are now busy preparing for the annual field day of the Second Massachusetts School regiment, to be held at Malden Saturday, May 20, one week later than first announced. The cadets improved their standing last year as compared with the first year and will make a bid for a still higher position this year. There will be athletic contests this year, between representatives of the various schools and Pumphard has several athletes practicing for those events.

The series of addresses managed by The Forum in Phillips Academy, on some of the leading New England colleges closes to-night with an address by Prof. Tucker, president-elect of Dartmouth, to which the public is cordially invited. The previous speakers have been Pres. Andrews of Brown, Prof. Palmer of Harvard, Prof. Reynolds of Yale, and Pres. Gates of Amherst. The attendance of ladies and gentlemen from the village has steadily increased as the cause has gone on, and Prof. Tucker will be greeted, no doubt, by many who lament that the opportunity to hear him on educational and religious subjects is fast becoming rare.

Vineland, N. J., will soon have a little Andover colony of its own. Ex-Town Clerk George A. Putnam has bought a place there and will start Monday with his family for his new abode. It is also understood that Gilbert French and family will locate there. Richard M. Abbott, formerly of this town, has lived there for sometime.

Yesterday forenoon about 11 o'clock an alarm of fire was rung in for a brush blaze in Chestnut woods near the old Parnell place, now occupied by Augustus Remmes. Mrs. Remmes thought that her property was in danger and so came to town and notified Chief of Police Cheever. The engine company responded and soon had the fire under control. Several acres of land were burned over and a number of cords of cut wood belonging to Frank Gleason.

The Niotus Club held a meeting at the residence of its president, J. Newton Cole, Monday night. Several new members were admitted and other business done, after which those present enjoyed a very pleasant social time. There were readings by Miss Belle Butterfield and songs by Mrs. Cole and Miss Clara Bell. Games of various sorts also added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

"It won't do any good, but according to custom I suppose I must advertise plants again," said our well-known florist, George D. Millett, recently. Now we want to say that if that advertisement is to do anybody any good, it will be the ones who are wise enough to go down to Millett's for bedding plants before the largest and nicest ones are taken. His houses are full of as beautiful plants as ever, with the added feature of a richer and better growth than we have ever seen in a lot of bedding plants. If you want plants there is no better place to get them than at Millett's in the Holt District.

Base Ball.

The game now looked forward to with the most interest outside of the Exeter contest, is that with the Lawrenceville Academy of New Jersey, next Thursday afternoon. Lawrenceville is a preparatory school to Princeton and is sending a team north to take away the laurels of Andover and Exeter. Wait and see how they succeed. They are said to have a strong nine.

Wednesday afternoon Phillips continued her list of victories by defeating the Thomson-Houston Athletics of Lynn 6 to 5. Paige pitched effectively for Andover, not a safe hit being made off his delivery. Lanigan, who did such good work against Exeter, did not fare so well, Greenway especially hitting him freely, making a three and two bagger and a single. Andover's fielding was a little off color, all of the visitor's runs being made on errors.

The Phillips team have received new suits. They do not differ much from last year's, the only change being that the sweater is dark blue, with a small white A on the left side. The stockings and caps are dark blue to match the sweater, and the pants and shirts Yale grey.

L. G. Pettie, '04 broke his thumb in one of the street games last Saturday.

Last Friday afternoon the Phillips team defeated Technology '96 by a score of 7 to 0. Andover tried all three of her pitchers and they struck out 21 men. Technology did not make a safe hit, and only two got to first base.

The game last Saturday afternoon between Phillips and the Boston Blues was too one-sided to be at all interesting. The Blues have formerly sent good teams here, but this one was not much better than a Grammar School nine. Five innings of the agony was enough and the game was called. Phillips made some 23 runs while the visitors scored five goose eggs.

To-morrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the Stars of Lawrence will again meet the Academy boys and a good game may be expected.

Notes from the Hill and Seminary.

Rev. Mr. Anderson of Connecticut is in town this week as a visitor.

Mrs. Col. Woodfin of the Soldiers' National Home, Virginia, is visiting her son at Phillips Academy.

On Wednesday forenoon, Robert A. Woods of Boston delivered his third biographical and historical lecture at the Seminary. The theme was, "William Wilberforce and the Abolition of Slave Trade," and it proved as thrilling as any romance. The large audience were very attentive and gave hearty plaudits to the speaker. Next Wednesday at 11 A.M., the topic will be "Lord Shaftesbury and the Factory Reformers." All interested will be welcome.

E. J. Sarkis of the Seminary addressed a large audience at the United Congregational Church in Lawrence Sunday night. His subject was Syria and the development of missionary work among his native people. Mr. Sarkis was born near Mount Lebanon. He appeared in native costume and gave a very interesting talk.

Draper Speaking.

The following students were announced Thursday morning at Phillips Academy as the successful ten who will compete for the Draper prizes the current year:—H. W. Beal, Danvers; O. E. Branch, Malden; O. M. Clark, Whitwood, So. Dak.; Charles Grilk, Davenport, Ia.; T. C. Hoffman, Rockville, Ct.; W. J. Lapham, Glen Falls, N. Y.; J. W. Meldrum, Andover; W. B. Parker, Norfolk, Neb.; L. Ullmann, Springfield, Mo.

About forty competed before a committee of the Faculty for a place among the ten. The speaking will probably be early in June. Mr. Draper has increased the foundation of the prize recently.

Road Department.

In partial response to a petition for a Road Department at Washington, similar to the Agricultural department, for the purpose of promoting knowledge in the art of constructing and maintaining roads, a clause covering an appropriation for investigation in this line was inserted in the Agricultural Department bill.

It is encouraging that the vast importance of this matter of good roads is receiving, though tardily, national recognition. Inquiries are being constantly made into the agricultural interests of the nation, as is proper, for these constitute the foundation of all our prosperity. The intimate, almost vital, connection of the roadways with the farmers' progress or stagnation, however, seems not to have received the intelligent thought it demands.

The difference in cost between hauling produce to railroad points over bad and good roadways often represents the difference between failure and success. The poor road is a constant, irretrievable loss to the farmer—just how great, when reduced to a percentage, as it has been by competent hands, would appeal the most careless deliver in the soil. The first cost of a thoroughly good roadway is large; but wherever there is any considerable travel it is fully justified, as it is an investment which pays a tremendous rate of interest.

We should like to see the agriculturists of the country quit for the nonce all dissensions among themselves, and even all activity in politics, and get together in a new Farmer's Alliance for Good Roads. They could well afford to drop many issues which they deem important to untidily urge upon Congress the necessity of taking up this great subject in the interest of the whole country. Cities, counties and states are already moving toward a betterment of their highways. The general government should supplement and crown the whole by an interstate—a national—system, which shall place the United States in the line of progress toward European standards. Give us the new "Alliance."—Salem Gazette.

Tobacco Dust.

This article is simply tobacco stems ground into a fine dust and is a very useful thing in the garden or greenhouse in fighting insects. It is sold by the seedsmen at about $3 per barrel, and large quantities can be had for less. For smoking greenhouses it has the great advantage that it burns very slowly and never injures the plants by too hot a fire. It is also very useful to sprinkle over the beds to keep off the green fly, and to protect young melon, squash and cucumber plants from the bugs by sprinkling them with it often. It also has useful properties as a fertilizer, being rich in potash and nitrogen.

Lunches at the World's Fair.

The restaurant keepers at the World's Fair have overdone the extortion business already and the fair goers have begun to take revenge by carrying their lunches. The Chicago Evening Post encourages the carriers and tells them to keep doing so. Says the Post: "It is not pleasant feeding, this basket-peddling business, but it is better than stalled ox and robbery therewith. We hope to see this practice grow and increase. Let no man, or woman either, hold it a disgrace to carry a lunch basket to the fair. On the contrary, let him or her perch on the steps of the high-priced restaurateurs and flaunt economy, good sense and independence in the face of extortion. A little of this treatment will have a wholesome effect. A similar fate awaits some extortionate hotel keepers in various parts of the city, who have put their prices up out of reason and prepared to rob their guests at every turn. It will dawn upon these worthies sooner or later that they are cutting their own throats."

Living Age.

Recent issues of this charming magazine, now in its fiftieth year, present the same interesting variety of historic literary and scientific matter that has characterized its contents from the beginning. The reader is always sure to find in each weekly issue articles on subjects of the greatest present interest and which are, at the same time, of permanent value. The recent appearance of a new history of the Waterloo campaign has awakened a renewed interest on that subject, so, in No. 2548, we find two articles, one entitled "The Inner History of the Waterloo Campaign," by Arch. Forbes, the famous war correspondent; the other, "A Contemporary Letter on the Battle of Waterloo." Its weekly publication gives Littell's Living Age a great advantage. It is only $8 a year, and it would be difficult to find a more useful or delightful way of investing that sum. A specimen copy may be obtained by sending 15 cts. to the publishers, Littell & Co., 31 Bedford St., Boston.

History Should Begin at Home.

A writer in a recent number of the New England Magazine makes a plea for the study of local history in the public schools. Every city and town, says the writer, should have its history written with some detail for use in the schools of that town, and with this should be included a proper treatment of the geography of the region. Such a work has been done for Dover, Mass., and the book is in use in that town today very successfully. This local textbook may be put in the form of a catechism, with questions, or in the narrative form. It should begin with a clear statement of the location of the place, to be followed with something on the topography, the geology and the botany; then the history of the settlement of the town; the establishment of the first church; the growth and municipal history; notices of the important public buildings; military history; to be followed by accounts of the industries, railroads, principal highways, commerce; a brief sketch of the schools and other educational institutions; something about noted men or women who were born or have lived in the town or have visited it. These topics need not be arranged in the order here given, but according to the plan best adapted to the locality. This study, I believe, will be found very helpful.

It is one to awaken instant interest in pupil and teacher. The child loves to read and talk about places and things with which he is familiar, as we older people are more interested in anything about countries we have visited than about those we have never seen. The local history and geography are the easiest for the child to grasp, and we will learn other history from that.

Teachers and the World's Fair.

Of course everybody, not positively bedridden, will try to get to the World's Fair. Teachers especially will want to go. The fair will be a great educator; a condensed trip around the world. It will teach more than a University course in Europe. The only question is how to go best. What way will give the most enjoyment at the least cost? Few teachers are millionaires, but they are all discriminating. They can always pick out the best, and they always get it if possible.

Well, here's the best. The Boston & Maine will run, through the whole season, special Exposition trains, leaving Boston every Saturday at 3 P.M. and reaching Chicago early Monday morning. These trains will consist entirely of the finest vestibuled Pullman sleeping and dining cars; they will be in charge of a special Raymond and Whitcomb conductor, and they will carry their passengers to a special station close to the Fair grounds, and into the midst of excellent hotels. Returning, these Boston & Maine specials will leave Chicago Sunday afternoon, reaching Boston Tuesday morning; and one may take any return special he chooses, staying at the Fair one week or as many as he wishes. One may also select from several routes; though doubtless the route via Montreal and Niagara Falls will appeal to the majority. These special trips include a double berth for each passenger, and the three finest meals each day that the art Epicurean can devise. The whole trip will be the acme of luxury. It will be the best way to go to the World's Fair; and strangely enough—a fact illustration of the fact that truth is stranger than fiction—it will be the cheapest.

But these specials are limited in capacity; and there will be no crowding. Each train has 105 berths and will take only 105 passengers. Is the point clear? Your application must be in early. There will be a great dearth of Pullman cars this summer, the demand will be so unusual; but the Boston & Maine specials are sure of their Pullmans; they've got them now. Those who procrastinate will go in a common car, sleep two in a seat, with their heads in the aisle; and when they get to Chicago, they will be as big a sight as the Fair. Get a circular from the Boston office, or at any Boston & Maine station.

It will cost you nothing and will surely do you good, if you have a Cough, Cold, or any trouble with Throat, Chest or Lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, is guaranteed to give relief, or money will be paid back. Sufferers from La Grippe found it just the thing and under its use had a speedy and perfect recovery. Try a sample bottle at our expense and learn for yourself just how good a thing it is. Trial bottles free at Arthur Bliss' and H.M. Whitney & Co.'s Drug Stores. Large size, 50c and $1.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis. was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Ed. Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O. had five large Fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Children's Rights. Kate Douglass Wiggin. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. For sale at the Andover Bookstore.

It has been said that if there could be a kindergarten on every odd corner in New York city, the beer saloon would soon be an unknown quantity on the even ones. Public kindergartens are now springing up in bright spots in every State, and to increase the "grown up" peoples' interest in "Children's Rights" comes Mrs. Wiggin's wise and witty book in which she epitomizes her telling experiences among children of all ages and one might say of all nations. Every one wishes to know what the pioneer of the free kindergarten in our country thinks best for the "little ones," and mothers far away from kindergarten joys may get all sorts of "points" from Mrs. Wiggin as to making a pleasant "garden" for the children at home. One finds special interest in the "Plays and Playthings" but the most unique chapter is that on the "Rights" of the child, which are so often never considered. Every page treats of an important matter, for if the millennium is to come it will certainly begin in the ideal kindergarten and through the ideal kindergarten.

The Phillips Andover Mirror. Andover Press.

On the twentieth of May, 1892, the Observatory of the ANDOVER TOWNSMAN wished all success to the Phillips Mirror in its new and difficult undertaking of issuing each month a magazine worthy of the high standard of scholarship in Phillips Academy. The editors have reached more nearly the high goal at which they are aiming than could have been anticipated by their most partial readers. I beg to differ from one editorial statement as to the work of the schoolboy, for many of the sketches, in style and finish, are quite worthy to be compared with those of the "great magazines." The suggestion as to "Mirage" is capital, for as Mr. Noble Simms correspondent of the "Scalping-Knife" made his half-guinea's worth of copy out of every man he met, so might Mirage be happily filled with the humorous details of every-day incidents in the school-life. Dirt!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance-wheel turns on its delicate axis 13,996,800 times; it does not "rest" at night, like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly. You oil an engine, or a sewing-machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go uncared for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots, and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance. Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention.

FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1893

The Woman Suffrage Association of New England celebrated their twenty-fifth birthday at Boston, this week. Not one of the fair members felt any hesitancy at boasting of its matronly age.

Special Commissioner Blount, whom Prest. Cleveland sent to Hawaii, is to be made minister there instead of the faithful Stevens. His Georgian training appears to have made him prefer a foreign to a United States flag on the public buildings. He ought to be "called back."

Dean Lawrence of Cambridge has formally signified his acceptance of the bishopric of Massachusetts, to which he was elected last week. The other bishops of the country and the various diocesan standing committees will proceed to signify their approbation or dissent, and he will probably be consecrated in the autumn.

Since last week there has been quite a flurry in speculative circles, and several large failures have resulted, among the bankers and brokers of New York. If men will gamble, they must take the consequences. Small and steady gains by honest industry are the safest and best.

It is said that John Ruskin has been invited to accept the vacant laureateship of England, made vacant by the death of Lord Tennyson. This seems a strange selection, both because Ruskin is distinctively a writer of prose, and because he is in advanced age and very infirm health, with no prospect of ever producing any great work in his new capacity, should he accept the honor.

The death of Prof. J. W. Patterson of Dartmouth College, formerly a Senator of the United States, was a surprising and peculiar incident of a prayer-meeting at Hanover. So sudden and painless was his exit from life that no one sitting close beside him suspected the truth until the meeting closed. He had had an honorable and useful career, both in public and private life. As an orator he occupied the front rank in the Granite State for many years—which is high praise, since it has many able and eloquent seions. His funeral on Monday was very largely attended. May his example long linger in the minds of the young men of New Hampshire.

Another son of Massachusetts, who went away in early life and accumulated a fortune, has left substantial evidence that he did not forget his native commonwealth. He died recently at Baltimore, Md., bequeathing more than $250,000 to the cause of religion and patriotism. This was J. Henry Stickney, a wealthy coal and iron merchant. The beneficiaries of his will are Plymouth, Mass., for the perpetuation of the memory of the Pilgrims and their deeds, and the various benevolent societies of the Congregational denomination, with headquarters in Boston and New York. The towns of West Brookfield and Rowley, in this State, were also remembered with moderate amounts, for libraries. Such acts as this go far to prove that Mammon is losing his grip.

One of the most extraordinary occurrences for a long time was the letter from Congressman Morse of this State to the murderer Almy awaiting execution in New Hampshire. Mr. Morse endeavored to convince Almy that he has been a wicked sinner and ought to repent before he is ushered into eternity. With his letter he sent the criminal a book, intended to enforce the moral lessons contained in the missive. Mr. Morse is doubtless conscientious in thus turning missionary, but his success seems not to have been brilliant. His theological comments to a Boston reporter, in further explanation and vindication of his letter, indicate that his zeal is rather stronger than his discretion.

The editor of the TOWNSMAN lives on Locke St., a street that when the concrete walk is laid will be one of the best laid out and best built in town. A street that for fifteen years has not had $25 laid out on it, and which for fifteen years has borne a large amount of travel and a fair share of town taxes.

For three years the TOWNSMAN has urged at every opportunity the importance of improved roads and road building; the fruit of such effort is seen, in a measure, in a slow but steady improvement the past two or three years in our roads.

But ah me! unfortunately for the peace of mind of my neighbor of the north, of the south, of the east and the west, one of the first jobs to be done under a new regime is on Locke St.

Every load of filling at once becomes a dagger into the heart of some long-sufferer from bad roads, every piece of crushed stone is credited to a word written or spoken by the editor of the TOWNSMAN, every time the road roller passed his house marked some other neighborhood being robbed of its share of the town's road money, and with the last shovelfuls of gravel comes the last throes of a disgruntled community crying, "The TOWNSMAN is hushed," "He's got what he wanted," "The roads will rest now," etc., etc. That the intelligent citizens of Andover should charge an editor of a newspaper with anything short of a crime, or with little crimes even, I do not wonder, but that the intelligent citizens of Andover should charge the selectmen of this town, individually and collectively, should for an instant believe that any one or all of them has any thought of anything in doing this work but a thought of expending money where it is needed, is hard to believe.

Locke Street was fixed because it needed it, it was fixed right because the selectmen believed the right way was cheapest in the end and I say keep on in that way; the TOWNSMAN is hushed until it finds something to kick about, and as for the selectmen, my opinion is that when they get scared by what the TOWNSMAN says, and by their acts try to silence its opinions, there won't be any of the present members on the board.

The TOWNSMAN is chuck full of Andover and Andover's improvement and is happy in the thought that its interest and enthusiasm has done some good, and it is going to keep right on in these same lines just as long as it is conducted by

Yours truly,
JOHN N. COLE.

Third Annual Prize Drill.

The third annual prize drill of the Pynchard School cadets took place, in the Town Hall, last Friday evening. The audience was a large one and particularly interested in the programme of the evening. Taken as a whole the work was not quite up to last year's, but considering the circumstances it was very creditable to all concerned and especially to the officers who have drilled the company without the services of a drill master. The many well executed movements elicited hearty applause. The Andover Band Orchestra enlivened the occasion with good music.

The programme opened with a "setting up" drill, Sergt. Donovan being in command. This was something additional to the former drills and consisted really of a series of calisthenics. Company drill under the command of Capt. Chas. H. Eames followed, after which came the Senior competitive drill, Lieut. Howard Wright commanding. There were twelve contestants namely: Sergts. Donovan, Moody, Stott, Corporals A. S. Roberts and J. Russell Chandler, Privates J. L. Smith, H. F. Holt, J. A. Riley, J. H. Hovey, W. C. Donald and Sergt. C. W. Richardson. The twelve were reduced to the first eight names and then to the following five: Sergts. Stott, Moody, Corporal Roberts, Chandler, Private Smith. From this number the winners were picked, Corporal Chandler receiving first prize, a medal, and Private Smith second, also a medal.

A squad of officers gave an interesting exhibition drill, introducing loading and firing movements, and then the junior squad in command of Lieut. T. M. Lanan came forward to compete for prizes. The contestants were: Corporal C. E. Currier, and Privates R. W. Trow, W. B. Holt, H. A. Bodwell, T. Cullinane, J. Downing, Samuel Hulme, J. A. O'Donnell, A. S. Flint, F. G. Todd, L. A. Eastman, W. J. Butterfield. The judges reduced this number to the seven first named and then to Corporal Currier and Privates Bodwell and Trow. Bodwell was given first prize, a medal, and Currier received honorable mention.

Dress parade, under command of Capt. Eames, was well done and closed the programme. At this time Rev. Frederic Palmer awarded the prizes. The judges were Captain Joubert of Co. F of Lawrence, Capt. Coan of Co. L, North Andover and Lieut. Flanders of the sixth regiment, Wakefield. Visitors were present from the Reading and Wakefield High Schools and other places.

Cricket.

Last Saturday afternoon the Andover Cricket Club received sort of a surprise in the shape of a defeat by the Lawrence Athletics, the score being 30 to 27. A bad beginning makes a good ending, so it is said, and it is hoped it will prove true in this case.

To-morrow afternoon at 1.30 the local club will cross bats with the Mystics of Medford. The following team has been chosen to represent Andover: Capt. Bruce, Gordon, Lowe, Haddon, Ripley, Pearson, Kydd, White, Porter, Gregg, Wilkie. Reserves, Lawson, McDermott, Higginbottom.

An Old P.A. Teacher.

A pleasant letter and a catalogue of Cutler Academy in Colorado Springs, Col., reminds us of Prof. M. C. Gile, who will always be so pleasantly remembered by many Andover people. We are glad to learn of Mr. Gile's rapid improvement in health, with so much promise of complete restoration to perfect health, a fact which he attributes almost wholly to the delightful and invigorating climate of Colorado Springs.

Easterners are so apt to think of the west as offering almost no educational advantages, but the knowledge that we have of Prof. Gile's rare attainments, coupled with the advantages of location of his new field of work, lead us to quote a bit from Cutler Academy Circular, for the possible benefit of any who may be unable to make education and good health go hand in hand in our eastern climate.

The City of Colorado Springs is admirably adapted for a college town. At its very foundation plans were wisely laid, and the succeeding growth has maintained a most healthy character of morality and culture, to which has been added the element of wealth, increasing since the construction of radiating railroad systems, at a brisk, though not at an abnormal, rate. The result is a prosperous, wide-awake town, from which saloons and all attendant destructive influences are absent, having a population drawn from every section of the Union, as well as from England, and, in a slight degree, from other foreign countries; but, whether native or foreign, composed wholly of the better class of settlers; a town at present of about twelve thousand inhabitants, but with all the conveniences of a larger city—water-works, sewers, electric lights, electric street-railway, mail delivery, telephone communication north, south, and west. It is a noted health-resort, but has nothing of the air of a hospital. But while it possesses the attractions of a city, the lover of nature may seek far for a spot more favored. The mountains are close at hand, and their serrated line occupies about a third of the horizon. In the centre stands Pike's Peak, a name familiar everywhere, to whose summit henceforth the traveller may ascend by carriage or railway car, or by romantic bridle paths, remote from the thronged lines of summer travel. The climate has obtained a world-wide reputation. Its curative qualities consist largely in the opportunity for outdoor exercise, afforded by the great number of fine days, to which the dryness and rarity of the air adds a quality exhilarating to all, and regarded as a specific in cases of malarial disease, asthma, and incipient phthisis. Students unable to work in other climates may here continue their studies, while at the same time making a permanent gain in health. This plan has been successfully carried out in a number of instances.

Prof. Tucker's Valedictory.

The last address which the students are likely to hear for some time at the Seminary by Prof. Tucker was delivered by him in Bartlett Chapel last evening before the Society of Inquiry. A goodly number of the general public were in attendance besides undergraduates, and Prof. Tucker was given an ardent greeting.

He first referred to his own entrance into the ministry, making the somewhat surprising statement that it was not until the last year, and perhaps the last term, of his theological course at Andover when he finally decided to become a clergyman. The reason for his hesitancy was that, at that time, there was not much to stimulate a young man, in theological circles. Now all is changed. There never was so good a time to enter the ministry as to-day, because it promises grand opportunities for usefulness. The sermon has been emancipated from its traditional bondage. It is no longer an elaborate essay, but is the speak of a man's personality to mankind of all grades. The number of men attending church is steadily increasing, and that means that ministers are learning the secret of how to utilize their noble office to its best advantage.

Prof. Tucker then proceeded to speak of "Proportion and Emphasis in the Ministry." He cited the Apocalyptic vision of the city whose length, breadth and height are equal as a symbol of what the clerical profession should be. The minister should have lofty mental and spiritual altitude; he should have breadth, not merely as an eclectic gatherer of miscellaneous truths, but as a self-centred believer in the Truth, with Christ by his side; and he should have a long look ahead, not expecting to accomplish everything immediately. Preaching should be magnified, but men should be studied not less than books.

The address was one of Prof. Tucker's most eloquent efforts and evoked enthusiastic applause as he closed. Nearly all the audience pressed forward to clasp his hand, although he facetiously remarked that he had no design of becoming a stranger to Andover.

Unless Prof. Drummond of Scotland may come later, this closes the lectures of the Society of Inquiry for the present term.

A New Depot.

How many times have you looked at the old barn shaped building that stands as the railway visitor's first welcome to Andover and compared it with the attractive Malden or Melrose stations?

That Andover needs a new station and that her patronage merits one is a fact appreciated by every one who has any interest, but that such a thing is possible, and in fact probable, that we are to have one is known to but few and in fact seems almost too good to be true. The Boston & Maine people will be obliged soon to either remodel the old, or build a new station. To do the former is considered a very doubtful move, as by location and arrangement the present structure is not and never can be made a convenient depot.

The plan suggested is to build a new station on the high knoll about 100 yards south of the present depot. This spot commands a clear view of the track both ways and is an ideal one for a new station. A word to "powers that be" by those who are interested in seeing a new station for Andover may make the possibility a surety. By all means let us push the project of a new railway station!

The New Cottages.

The Draper cottage is the fourth of the new dormitories to be completed and it will be ready for use at the beginning of next term. Its style is very much similar to the Taylor cottage. The building is of brick and three stories high, having five double suites for students and one for a teacher. The rooms are nicely furnished in hard pine and each has an open fireplace. The basement contains closets and baths, and in the attic is a series of lockers for each room.

This cottage is really the first to replace one of the old cottages, being situated on the site of English Commons No. 2. Hardy & Cole were the contractors for this building.

The Bancroft Cottage, which stands on the site just above the Andover Cottage at Phillips Academy, is now completed and the rooms will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term. This is the third of the four cottages begun during the year. It contains four double suites, one single room and a double suite for a teacher. C. B. Mason was the builder of this cottage. The e-tire inside mouldings are of hard wood and the floors of carefully selected yellow pine. Every study room has an open fireplace and is heated by the hot air system. Hot and cold baths are situated in the cellar.

A Rich Treat.

A large and select audience gathered in the Town Hall Tuesday evening and listened to a splendid concert by the Harvard Glee, Banjo and Mandolin clubs. Most everyone anticipated a treat and they had it, the concert coming up to the highest expectations. The programme was given as printed in these columns last week. The singing was excellent and the playing of both banjo and mandolin clubs was of a high order especially the latter. Mr. Greene's tenor solo "The Image of the Rose" was encored, as was "The Mulligan Musketeers" by the Glee Club. Sydney Farwell, formerly a member of the Phillips Glee Club, sang splendidly his solo "The Interrupted Serenade." From a comical standpoint Mr. Wilder's song "The Debutante" was the feature of the evening. He was recalled several times and gave a Hawaiian melody.

Mr. Louis Barry of the Seminary, who was a member of last year's Harvard Club, rendered several amusing solos. Besides Mr. Farwell, Clarence Morgan, a former Phillips boy, sang with the Glee Club.

Obituary.

Monday night there passed away another old resident of the town Hannah Richardson, who died at her home, at the corner of Maine and Morton Streets, of pneumonia. She had reached the age of four score and four years. Mrs. Richardson was born here, being a daughter of Daniel and Sarah Stevens. A number of years ago she, with her two daughters, moved from West Parish to the centre of town, as the latter were then teaching school here. Her long residence, a kind and neighborly disposition, and a sterling character made for her a large circle of friends in the different communities where she lived. She was a true Christian woman, and as such was a power of good wherever she was. We can but admire her life example, being one of simple, enduring faith, and an habitual leaning on the Lord, of whom she said, "He is my rock, my strength, in whom I can ever trust."

Funeral services were held at her late home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Greene of the West Church officiating. Her favorite hymn, "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," was sung by Mrs. Dr. Gilbert and Mrs. Wm. Jackson. The remains were taken to the West Cemetery for burial. Besides two daughters, a son, George Richardson of Moberly, Mo., survive her.

Rebecca Bradbury died at the home of Mr. Field in West Parish last Friday, at the age of 75 years. The cause of her death was heart disease and bronchitis. The remains were taken to Taunton, Mass., for burial.

On Monday occurred the death of Anne Higgins, widow of the late David Higgins, at her home on Essex Street, just below the depot. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Mrs. Higgins was 70 years old, and was an old and respected resident of this town. She was a kind and pleasant woman, and will be greatly missed by the surviving members of the family, of whom there are four daughters and three sons.

The funeral was on Wednesday, services being held at St. Augustine's Church, and the remains were interred at the Catholic Cemetery.

Catherine Welch, mother of Michael T. Welch, died at her home on Main Street last Sunday after a severe illness of congestion of the lungs. Deceased was a native of Ireland and was 77 years of age. She was an old resident of the town and much respected by all who knew her. Funeral services were held at St. Augustine's Church Tuesday morning and burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

Margaret, daughter of Timothy McCarthy, died at her home on Main Street, Monday, at the age of 13 years, of consumption. This is the second death in the family within a short time, an older daughter having died a few weeks ago. Such affliction is very sad indeed and commands much sympathy. Funeral services were held at St. Augustine's Church, Wednesday morning, and the remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery.

Wm. G. Townsend is dangerously ill. He has been confined to his room for the past fortnight. Hopes are entertained of his ultimate recovery.

It is time for bush fires as the firemen now fully realize. They were called Wednesday afternoon to a fire between Joyce's new house and the railroad track.

M. E. Clemons has been in Philadelphia this week. He is consulting engineer for a new electric road now building in the suburbs of that city.

Mr. Frederick Osborne has moved to town and will occupy the house on Chester Street lately vacated by Mr. Skipp. Operations at the new pottery will be commenced at once.

A goodly number of the members and friends of the Methodist society met at the parsonage on Wednesday evening and gave a reception to the pastor and family, music, singing, and social conversation being the order of the hour, and everybody seemed to enter heartily into the spirit of the occasion. Many useful articles were left by the friends, for which we extend our sincere thanks. Such gatherings help to smooth the rough places along the path of the itinerant journey.

Articles of association have been published for the formation of a street railway corporation to be known as "The Boston and Winthrop Street Railway Company." Maynard E. Clemons of Andover, formerly general manager of the Wakefield and Stoneham Street Railway Company, is the principal shareholder of the new company, being credited with 223 shares. The capital stock of the company is set at $35,000. The proposed railway will run from the centre of Winthrop to Orient Heights, Boston, about three and one half miles in length. Mr. Clemons is one of the directors of the company.—Wakefield Citizen Banner.

"Our Boys" discussed at the Congregational Club

The May meeting of the Merrimack Valley Congregational Club was held at the Lawrence Street Congregational Church, Lawrence, Monday night. After a social hour from 5 to 6 about 140 ladies and gentlemen sat down to an excellent supper. Grace was said by Rev. C. M. Clark of Haverhill, and thanks were returned by Rev. Dr. Greene of Lowell. Several candidates were propounded for membership, and the following new members were voted in: Millard F. Davis, Lowell, and George W. Truitt, Tewksbury.

Rev. C. M. Southgate of Worcester was the first speaker on "The Church and the Boys." Among other things he said:

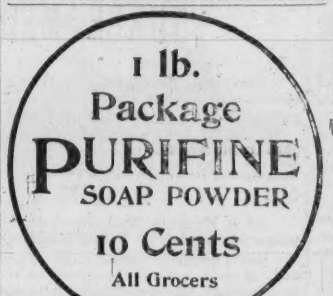

Put together these three things, viz: the enlightenment of Christ, the age of progress, and the age of boys, and you must expect some grand results. In order to reach the boys you must catch them where they are. Boys are not naturally spiritually minded, and you must take this into account. But the boys ought to be in the church. You can't bring them in by sitting on the church door steps and singing "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts." But it is a wise thing to introduce into church work the athletic principle, which appeals directly to the boy nature. In the application of this principle the means used should be: 1. Good, harmless in themselves; 2. adjustable to spiritual ends, and 3. fitted to the community in which the church is located. The speaker then described the work of organizing boys in his field, and it was exceedingly interesting. First he had a gymnasium, and later on he formed them into a club. The expenses were all raised by the boys themselves.

The second speaker was Rev. A. E. Winship of the Journal of Education, his subject being "The To-morrow of our Boys." He said that he wanted to impress two things in his introduction upon his hearers. 1. The success of dealing with boys is the personality of the leader. 2. The only way of learning what to do with the boys is to learn it from the boy himself. We must keep our eye upon the boy of to-morrow in our labor with the boy of to-day. Let us look at the boys and divide their early lives into three parts, from 1 to 7, from 7 to 13, and 13 to 20. The first seven years, the passive period, the child does not need much labor except to be helped in a natural development. But after he reaches the age of seven he becomes inquisitive, a regular interrogation point, and this is the inquisitive period. But after he passes his thirteenth year he enters upon the elastic period, and this is the period which demands our most thoughtful and earnest endeavor. We must believe in the end of the boy. We must have faith in them, and patience with them. We must pray for these boys as for our own. Mr. Winship's address, like that of Mr. Southgate, was illustrated by so many telling and touching incidents as to make a report of it within the limits of our space very difficult.

Others who took part in the discussion were Prof. Carleton of Bradford, Principal Bancroft of Phillips Academy, and Rev. Mr. Kennigott of Lowell.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Lizzie Borden Arraigned on the Charge of Murder.

Prison Life Has Not Changed Her Appearance—She Maintains the Calm Demeanor Which Has Characterized Her.

NEW BEDFORD, May 9.—Miss Lizzie Borden, indicted for the murder of her father and stepmother last August, was arraigned at the civil session of the superior court, now sitting in this city, before Judge John W. Hammond yesterday.

Her counsel, Andrew Jennings, arrived in the city from Fall River on the 4:10 o'clock train, and 10 minutes later the train from Taunton rolled in bearing Miss Borden, accompanied by Sheriff Andrew R. Wright and his wife.

Mr. Jennings reached the courthouse before Sheriff Wright and his charge, and several policemen were there to preserve order should a crowd gather. The back containing the Wrights and Miss Borden drove into the yard of the courthouse at the rear. Mr. Jennings was there and received Mr. Wright and the ladies, ushering them into the district attorney's private office on the first floor.

For the first time since the first day of last September, nine long months ago, Lizzie Borden made her appearance in the outside world.

How Did She Look? Much stir has been made up and down the land over the delay in her trial. She did not appear as if the months of her incarceration had worked ill to her physically or mentally. She looked in excellent condition.

At 10 o'clock the prisoner, with Sheriff and Mrs. Wright, entered the courtroom, and Miss Lizzie took her place in the dock, with Mrs. Wright beside her. Attorney General Pillsbury was not present.

District Attorney Knowlton stated that the law provided that a person indicted for any capital offense may be arraigned at any regular term of the superior court and accordingly moved that Lizzie Borden, who had been indicted for murder, be now arraigned.

As Mr. Jennings agreed, it was so ordered by the court.

Clerk Simon Borden then said in his most solemn, yet gentle tones: "Lizzie Andrew Borden."

The prisoner calmly arose and stood unmoved amid the gaze of all the crowd. "You will please hold up your right hand."

"Harken to an indictment found against you by the grand inquest of the county of Bristol. You may drop your hand."

There were two counts to the indictment and after they had both been read the clerk asked: "Lizzie Andrew Borden, what say you, to the first count of the indictment?"

With a calm, quiet dignity, full of resolution and courage, the defendant replied in distinct and measured tones: "I am not guilty."

So it is with regard to the second count. Mr. Knowlton now said that there were other indictments against Lizzie Andrew Borden, each the same as one of the counts of the first indictment, one alleging that she killed her father and the other that she killed her stepmother. Mr. Jennings said that the prisoner would waive the reading of these indictments, but Judge Hammond would not permit it, saying: "I prefer the record would not stand that way."

So the two indictments were read and to each the defendant replied calmly: "I am not guilty." After the court had received the prisoner's pleas to the three indictments, Mr. Knowlton briefly said: "Your honor, I have no further motion to make."

Mr. Jennings then arose and asked the court about the assignment of counsel. Judge Hammond said he supposed the prisoner had counsel, and Mr. Jennings said: "Yes, I am her counsel."

The court asked if there were associates and Mr. Jennings replied: "Yes, George D. Robinson and Melvin O. Adams."

Judge Hammond asked if the prisoner desired if these three should serve, and, receiving an affirmative reply, the court said: "I will designate these as counsel without making an assignment." The court then adjourned.

She was then escorted back to the district attorney's room, and at 5:35 started in a carriage for the depot to take the 5:50 train for Taunton. This time her counsel, Mr. Jennings, accompanied the party. Her uncle, John V. Morse, who has just returned from the west, was among the spectators of the afternoon scenes. Miss Emma Borden, Lizzie's sister, who visited her in Taunton jail yesterday afternoon, did not come to New Bedford.

Date for the Trial of Lizzie Borden. NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10.—All doubt as to the fact that the trial of Lizzie Borden is to take place in New Bedford is at last dispelled, and it is now known as a certainty that the famous murder case will be called on the first Monday in June at the courthouse in this city.

Swift has been the teller at the Birmingham bank for 12 years and has been regarded as a model of propriety.

Again Behind the Bars. BOSTON, May 11.—John C. Lynch is again safely within the walls of the state prison at Charlestown. With his custodians he arrived at the prison at 11:35 last night. THE EXPECTED HAPPENS

Office Seekers Should Read This Plain Statement From the President.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The following has been issued by the president for publication:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, May 7, 1893.

It has become apparent after two months' experience that the rules heretofore promulgated regulating interviews with the president have wholly failed in their operation. The time which, under those rules, was set apart for the reception of senators and representatives has almost been entirely spent in listening to applications for office, which have become bewildering in volume, perplexing and exhausting in their iteration and impossible of remembrance.

A due regard for public duty, which must be neglected if present conditions continue, and an observance of the limitations placed upon human endurance, oblige me to decline from and after this date all personal interviews with those seeking appointments to office, except as I, on my own motion, may specially invite them. The same considerations make it impossible for me to receive those who merely desire to pay their respects except on the days and during the hours especially designated for that purpose.

I earnestly request senators and representatives to aid me in securing for them uninterrupted interviews by declining to introduce their constituents and friends when visiting the "executive mansion" during the hours designated for their reception. Applicants for office will only prejudice their prospects by repeated importunity and by remaining at Washington to await results.

Dearborn Sentenced For Life.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 11.—The West Newbury arson case, in which Warren S. Dearborn and Oscar R. Hubbell were charged with burning the residence of James L. Addison, causing the death of two men, was resumed yesterday. The case was given to the jury without argument, Dearborn not being represented by counsel. After being out 13 minutes the jury returned with a verdict of guilty. Dearborn was sentenced to imprisonment at Charlestown, one day solitary and the residue at hard labor. Hubbell will go free, having turned state's evidence.

Will Contest His Father's Will.

NEW HAVEN, May 11.—Yesterday morning the hearing in John McDonnell's protest against the admission of his father's will was begun, and the case promises most sensational developments. John A. McDonnell died a month ago, leaving an estate of $50,000. He had seven children, to whom he bequeathed $5,000 each, except to his son John of "Miller's Falls, Mass., to whom he gave but $50, because of certain impudent letters sent to the deceased. The protest alleges that undue influence was brought to bear against the testator.

The Mystery Cleared Up.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., May 9.—James Harrington and Otis Thresher, the two young men, who disappeared so mysteriously from here at the time the yacht "Elsie" was stolen a week ago, are in New York all right. The blood on the deck of the "Elsie" has been explained. Mr. Horton, one of the crew of the Minnie, who picked up the yacht, in jumping aboard, hurt his hand, which bled quite freely.

Dean Lawrence Will Accept.

BOSTON, May 8.—It is said to have been practically settled that Dean Lawrence will accept the bishopric of the diocese of Massachusetts. A member of the board of trustees of the Episcopal school at Cambridge told a reporter last evening that he was sure that Dr. Lawrence would never have allowed his name to go before the convention had he not been willing to accept the election.

Woman Suffragists' Festival.

BOSTON, May 10.—The woman suffragists of Boston gathered in Music hall yesterday afternoon and evening, and held their annual festival. Among the speakers were Mrs. Laura Ormiston Chant of London, Mrs. Lucy Stone, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, Rev. George A. Gordon, Colonel T. W. Higginson, Mahlon R. Leonard of Waltham and Alfred S. Rae of Worcester.

A $100,000 Church Consecrated.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 11.—A granite church, costing over $100,000, entirely built, furnished and given to St. John's Episcopal parish by George P. Bliss of New York, a native of Northampton, was consecrated yesterday. This is the second church Mr. Bliss has built and furnished. The other one is on an island in New York harbor, and cost $80,000.

Died From Lockjaw.

BOSTON, May 9.—A death from lockjaw occurred yesterday at the Massachusetts general hospital, the victim being Miss Rasmussen Frederickson, 22 years of age, whose home was at Concord Junction. It is said that Miss Frederickson stepped on a rusty nail at her home last Wednesday, and that it penetrated her foot quite a distance.

Death of Mrs. Depew.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Mrs. Eliza Hagerman Depew, wife of Chauncey M. Depew, died at her residence in this city at 12:30 yesterday afternoon. Although Mrs. Depew was known to be seriously ill, this sudden termination of her illness was not expected by her family and those who were most intimately connected with her.

A Change For the Worse.

NEW YORK, May 11.—There was rumor about the Players' club last night that Edwin Booth took a turn for the worse during the day, and this rumor seemed justified when Dr. Sinclair Smith, the actor's regular physician, summoned Dr. Starr and Dr. Fremont Smith in consultation.

Backboys on Strike.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10.—The backboys of Wamsutta mills Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are out on strike, and unless the difficulty is speedily adjusted the spinners will be compelled to quit work for lack of roving. The strikers' grievance is insufficient pay.

Charge Not Proven.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 10.—The trial of Raymond Siekra, charged with criminal intimacy with Mrs. Charles A. Blake, which has consumed two days in court, was concluded yesterday afternoon, the defendant being discharged.

Quick Drying Floor Paints are made in various ways, with resinous oil sometimes, and often with cheap varnish. If a floor paint could only be made with a fine varnish, it would be very attractive, both as to its quick-drying properties, high gloss and durability; but such a varnish costs four dollars a gallon, and therefore is out of the question. A paint made with varnish does not spread as nicely as one with oil. The Chilton Floor Paints are made with pure, kettie-boiled Linseed Oil, with as much turpentine japan added as is consistent with durability. Too much dryer takes away from the life of the oil. If, for instance, the floor of the kitchen is to be painted, the first thing to do is to thoroughly wash it with soap and warm water, into which put a little ammonia, perhaps half an ounce to a pail of water. This will help remove all the grease. The floor should then be allowed to thoroughly dry. If you can conveniently do so, call in the services of a first-class painter. Paint one or two coats, as necessary, allowing first coat to harden and dry before second is applied. You can use the kitchen about twelve hours after the first coat is put on, and have the second coat put on several days later, if you wish. Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston.

The Phonograph as a Musical Instrument.

Some persons have expressed a fear lest the wide distribution of an apparatus capable of echoing all sorts of music, in a more perfect fashion than any music-box, might lead to the gradual extinction of piano-playing or violin-playing except for purposes of public exhibition, the phonographic echo of some great performer's work being so much superior to what most people could hope to accomplish. It seems to me that the contrary would be the result. Cheap phonographs, giving more or less perfect echoes of music, might make superfluous the painful attempts—painful to others, as well as to herself—of the unmusical young woman to master impossibilities. To the person of real musical instinct and capacity, the wealth of good music would certainly prove an incentive.

When the phonograph goes everywhere, and phonographic music is cheap, the housewife can listen to Rubenstein as she darts the stockings in the evening, and get superb lessons at the great fountains of musical art, if she has any taste that way. There is no reason to suppose that it will be any more difficult to record a performance of "Die Meistersinger" than a recitation by Coquelin, or a Beethoven symphony under Bilow's baton. There is a good time coming for the poor man of good taste.—Philip C. Hubert, Jr., in May Century.

A Bright Lad,

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, confidential statement to us:

"When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor told me, 'I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors thought that even if I did not die, I would never be able to walk, because I was so weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke under my arm. I hurt my finger and it gathered and threw out pieces of bone. If I hurt myself so as to break the skin, it was sure to become a running sore. I had to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has made me well and strong.'—T. D. M., Norcross, Kans."

FAITH AND REASON.

Two travelers started on a tour
With trust and knowledge laden;
One was a man with mighty brain,
And one a gentle maiden.
They joined their hands and vowed to be
Companions for a season.
The gentle maiden's name was Faith,
The mighty man's was Reason.

He sought all knowledge from this world,
And every world a-near it;
All matter and all mind were his,
But hers was only spirit.
If any stars were missed from heaven,
His telescope could find them;
But while he only found the stars
She found the God behind them.

He sought for truth above, below,
All hidden things revealing;
She only sought it womanwise,
And found it in her feeling.
He said, "This earth's a rolling ball,"
And so doth science prove it.
He but discovered that it moves,
She found the strings that move it.

He reads with geologic eye
The record of the ages;
Unfolding strata, he translates
Earth's wonder written pages.
He digs around a mountain base
And measures with a plummet;
She leaps it with a single bound
And stands upon the summit.

He brings to light the secret force
In nature's labyrinth lurking
And binds it to his onward car
To do his mighty working.
He sends his message o'er the earth
And down where sea-gems glisten;
She sendeth hers to God himself,
Who bends his ear to listen.

All things in science, beauty, art,
In common they inherit;
But he has only clasped the form,
While she has clasped the spirit.

He tries from earth to forge a key
To open the gate of heaven!
That key is in the hidden heart,
And back its bolts are driven.
They part! Without her aid is dark
His knowledge vain and hollow,
For Faith has entered in with God,
Where Reason may not follow.

—Elizabeth York Case in Home and Country.

The First American Bible.

In 1683 the first Bible printed in America was published in Cambridge. It was unlawful to print an English version of the Scriptures, that right being a monopoly enjoyed by privilege and patent in England. The one printed in Massachusetts was Eliot's famous "Indian Bible," and although 1,500 copies were struck off they are quite rare, and "sealed books," as the tongue in which they are written is literally a "dead language," the tribe and all who had a knowledge of the dialect being long extinct.

Eliot's work is unique, being at once a monument to his piety, perseverance and learning. Its literary successor was Newman's "Concordance of the Scriptures." This was compiled by the light of pine knots in a log cabin in one of the frontier settlements of Massachusetts. It was the first of its kind, and for more than a century was admitted to be the most perfect, holding its place in public esteem until superseded by Cruden's, which it suggested. —Philadelphia Record.

Meaning of the Word "Either."

The legal meaning of the word "either" has been gravely argued in an English court of record. A certain testator had left property, the disposition of which was affected by the "death of either" of two persons. One lawyer insisted that "either" meant both, and in support of his views he quoted Richardson, Webster, Chaucer, Dryden, Southey, the story of the crucifixion and a passage from Revelation. The judge suggested that there was a song in "The Beggar's Opera" which took another view, "How happy I could be with either, were I other dear charmer away."

In pronouncing judgment the court ruled that "either" meant one of two, and did not mean both. He said that it might have that meaning occasionally in poetry, but never in an English court of record. —Exchange.

An Unexplorable French Pit.

The wonderful pit of Creus de Souci in France is situated in a sheet of recent basalt on the south side of the Puy de Montchal. The opening is 83 feet in diameter and 38 feet deep, but at that depth a hole about 10 feet wide communicates with a hollow 70 feet deep, at the bottom of which is a stagnant pool overlaid with carbonic acid, which forbids access to the water surface. The interior is a vast hollow, apparently formed in the basalt when semifluid, by an explosion of volcanic gas. The temperature falls from 54 degrees Fahrenheit in the open air to 34 degrees near the water. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

Odd Echoes.

In a cave in the Pantheon, the guide, by striking the flaps of his coat, makes a noise equal to that produced by firing a 12-pound cannon. In the cave of Smelin, near Viborg, Finland, a stone thrown down a certain abyss makes a reverberating echo which sounds like the dying wail of some wild animal. —Exchange.

Smuggling Mushrooms by Mail.

An odd kind of smuggling is the sending of mushrooms by mail from Italy. They are of a peculiar kind, dried and are much relished by natives of that country in the United States. They come in small bags and are easily distinguished by smell. —Cor. Boston Transcript.

The soil of the state of Colorado in the irrigable parts is largely of disintegrated rock which is a perfect powder, highly susceptible to any vegetation it comes in contact with when heat and moisture are sufficient to insure the absorption of fertilizers.

Shellfish sometimes cause an itching skin eruption. Nausea, vomiting and giddiness are sometimes the indications that they disagree with those who partake of them.

Burton, when out of spirits, would go to the Thames, sit on the steps leading to the water and find pleasure in listening to the stories of the bargemen.

Kites rise against, not with, the wind. No man ever worked his passage anywhere in a dead calm. —John Neal.

It is said the city of Pittsburg now stands on ground once given in exchange for a violin.

The Nuisance of Inartistic Advertising.

We have occasionally regretted the monstrosities of street advertisements. Every vacant wall or boarding which is accessible to the bill sticker blazes with pictures which do not precisely educate the public taste, and are rather a serious addition to the minor evils of life. Well meant efforts have been made to improve these posters. The late Mr. Frederick Walker designed one for "The Woman in White." It was tolerably inoffensive, but far from an addition to the amenity of a blank wall.

Mr. Herkimer, if we are not mistaken, has tried his hand, and a well known picture of a little boy blowing soap bubbles, by Sir John Millais, is sufficiently familiar to the amateur. But the worst of it is that no such repeated airs, from whatever hand, are agreeable, much less the terrible man with the liver pad, compared with whom the lady with improbably long hair is a gem. This is not the end. The fields on each side of the railways grow monstrous advertisements—an offense to the eyes of travelers, and surely no real inducement to purchase the wares of the culprits.

A society has been formed to deal with these horrors, and the society protests against "diffidence and despondency." This is plucky at least, and so far deserves respect. It is a monstrous anomaly to spend public money on the improvement of public taste, and then to permit that taste to be debauched by "sky signs," advertisements in green fields, posters flaring on every vacant space. —London Saturday Review.

Casting Great Statues.

Stiglmeier, a German goldsmith in the first part of this century, having an ambition to attempt larger works than any he had accomplished, went to Naples in order to see the casting of Canova's statue of Charles III, but was denied the sight of certain secret technical processes. Stiglmeier found them out for himself nevertheless, and as soon as he went home made his first experiment on a statuette of Venus. Many delays occurred, and the excitement increased as the end drew near. By some mistake one of his assistants poured his molten metal into the airhole. Then the casting came to a standstill.

"The crowd of lookers on," writes the poor founder in his diary, "stood first dumb about me and then slipped out one by one and left me with my pain."

In a month a second casting was begun and failed. With unbroken courage he began the third cast, and on Christmas eve the metal was again poured in. It ran into the mold and spurted joyfully out at the air hole.

"Our joy knew no bounds," he declares. "We raised a loud cry of joy and embraced and kissed each other. Pasquale, the helper, kissed the head of Phidias coming out of the broken form and burned his mouth, for it had not had time to cool." —Youth's Companion.

Preparation the Important Factor.

The discovery by Edison of the carbon with which he perfected his electric lamp seems a happy accident, but such accidents never happen to common men. The great inventor scraped some soot from the blackened chimney of his laboratory lamp, and in a spirit of curiosity tested its properties. It proved to be the thing for which he was searching, but behind this fortunate discovery was a series of exhausting and exhaustive experiments with all kinds of likely materials, absorbing the energies of many months. The lucky hit rewarded the persistent will of a patient workman.

So with the young and obscure lawyer who conducts and wins a difficult case, as did Thomas Erskine in his elder's illness, or the struggling surgeon who has a sudden chance of distinction offered to him, he must have had a long and laborious preparatory training before he can profit by such an emergency. In short, a great opportunity is worth to a man precisely what his antecedents have enabled him to make of it. —William Matthews in Harper's Young People.

A Town in Pawn.

It may not be generally known that the little seaport town of Wisnar, in the Baltic, is virtually in the same position as Montague Tig's shirt—namely, at the pawnbroker's. It was in 1803 that Sweden pawned the town to the duchy of Mecklenburg for a round sum of money. It was then stipulated that the town should be restored to Sweden at the end of a century, provided the sum lent, together with interest, were paid back to Mecklenburg.

This sum is now said to amount to several hundred million marks, and apparently there is little chance of Wisnar being able to pay it at the date fixed. This singular treaty has lain dormant in the archives of the municipality ever since it was made up to the other day, when, apropos of the concession of some land to the custom authorities, it was exhumed for legal purposes. —Million.

What They Knew About Washington.

An Everett schoolteacher whose little charges range in age from 5 to 7 years determined to celebrate the anniversary of the natal day of the father of his country by asking a few questions. This was the interrogatory which she propounded. "What can you tell me about George Washington?" And these are a few of the individual answers: "He was the savior of us all." "He was the owner of the soldiers." "He was the man who can shoot straight."

"He discovered this country." "He was the first man in the world." "He was the man who never bragged." "He is the only man in the world who never told a lie." —Boston Journal.

He Had Gone Prepared.

"Ask father," she whispered softly, and he kissed her as he headed for the library. Ten minutes later she glided in and there found the old gentleman nursing his great toe and freighting his groans with whispered oaths. Then she knew that the destiny of her sweet young life was yet in abeyance, and she took a quiet sneak without uttering a word. —Detroit Free Press.

Lizzie Borden Arraigned on the Charge of Murder.

Prison Life Has Not Changed Her Appearance—She Maintains the Calm Demeanor Which Has Characterized Her

NEW BEDFORD, May 9.—Miss Lizzie Borden, indicted for the murder of her father and stepmother last August, was arraigned at the civil session of the superior court, now sitting in this city, before Judge John W. Hammond yesterday. Her counsel, Andrew Jennings, arrived in the city from Fall River on the 4:10 o'clock train, and 10 minutes later the train from Taunton rolled in bearing Miss Borden, accompanied by Sheriff Andrew R. Wright and his wife.

Mr. Jennings reached the courthouse before Sheriff Wright and his charge, and several policemen were there to preserve order should a crowd gather. The back containing the Wrights and Miss Borden drove into the yard of the courthouse at the rear. Mr. Jennings was there and received Mr. Wright and the ladies, ushering them into the district attorney's private office on the first floor.

For the first time since the first day of last September, nine long months ago, Lizzie Borden made her appearance in the outside world.

How Did She Look. This much talked of young woman? Much stir has been made up and down the land over the delay in her trial. She did not appear as if the months of her incarceration had worked ill to her physically or mentally. She looked in excellent condition.

At 10 o'clock the prisoner, with Sheriff and Mrs. Wright, entered the courtroom, and Miss Lizzie took her place in the dock, with Mrs. Wright beside her. Attorney General Pillsbury was not present.

District Attorney Knowlton stated that the law provided that a person indicted for Any Capital Offense may be arraigned at any regular term of the superior court and accordingly moved that Lizzie Borden, who had been indicted for murder, be now arraigned.

As Mr. Jennings agreed, it was so ordered by the court.

Clerk Simon Borden then said in his most solemn, yet gentle tones: "Lizzie Andrew Borden."

The prisoner calmly arose and stood unmoved amid the gaze of all the crowd.

"You will please hold up your right hand."

"Harken to an indictment found against you by the grand inquest of the county of Bristol. You may drop your hand."

There were two counts to the indictment and after they had both been read the clerk asked:

"Lizzie Andrew Borden, what say you, to the first count of the indictment?"

With a calm, quiet dignity, full of resolution and courage, the defendant replied in distinct and measured tones:

"I am Not Guilty."

So it is with regard to the second count. Mr. Knowlton now said that there were other indictments against Lizzie Andrew Borden, each the same as one of the counts of the first indictment, one alleging that she killed her father and the other that she killed her stepmother. Mr. Jennings said that the prisoner would waive the reading of these indictments, but Judge Hammond would not permit it, saying:

"I prefer the record would not stand that way."

So the two indictments were read and to each the defendant replied calmly: "I am not guilty." After the court had received the prisoner's pleas to the three indictments, Mr. Knowlton briefly said:

"Your honor, I have no further motion to make."

Mr. Jennings then arose and asked the court about the assignment of counsel. Judge Hammond said he supposed the prisoner had counsel, and Mr. Jennings said:

"Yes, I am Her Counsel."

The court asked if there were associates and Mr. Jennings replied: "Yes, George D. Robinson and Melvin O. Adams."

Judge Hammond asked if the prisoner desired if these three should serve, and, receiving an affirmative reply, the court said: "I will designate these as counsel without making an assignment." The court then adjourned.

She was then escorted back to the district attorney's room, and at 5:35 started in a carriage for the depot to take the 5:50 train for Taunton. This time her counsel, Mr. Jennings, accompanied the party. Her uncle, John V. Morse, who has just returned from the west, was among the spectators of the afternoon scenes. Miss Emma Borden, Lizzie's sister, who visited her in Taunton jail yesterday afternoon, did not come to New Bedford.

Date for the Trial of Lizzie Borden.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10.—All doubt as to the fact that the trial of Lizzie Borden is to take place in New Bedford is at last dispelled, and it is now known as a certainty that the famous murder case will be called on the first Monday in June at the courthouse in this city.

Teller Swift's Downfall.

NEW BEDFORD, May 8.—Edgar T. Swift, teller of the Birmingham National bank, is in jail on the charge of embezzling $10,000 of the funds of the institution. Swift is 28 years old, unmarried, and a prominent social figure in southern Connecticut. He admits his guilt. Swift has been the teller at the Birmingham bank for 13 years and has been regarded as a model of propriety.

Again Behind the Bars.

BOSTON, May 11.—John C. Lynch is again safely within the walls of the state prison at Charlestown. With his custodians he arrived at the prison at 11:35 last night. Lynch smiled grimly as the officers welcomed him to his old home. He was quickly hurried inside, and was allowed no opportunity for conversation.

Rhody's New Law.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 10.—John Young, who shot himself with suicidal intent, was put under bonds for trial for carrying a concealed dangerous weapon, this being the first arraignment under a new law passed by the present general assembly.

Miners Want Weekly Payments.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 11.—The operators and miners of this district have been in joint session for 12 hours. The men have agreed to work at last year's scale, but they are holding off for weekly payments.

Suicide of an Insane Woman.

THE EXPECTED HAPPENS.

Office Seekers Should Read This Plain Statement from the President.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The following has been issued by the president for publication:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, May 7, 1893.

It has become apparent after two months' experience that the rules heretofore promulgated regulating interviews with the president have wholly failed in their operation. The time which, under those rules, was set apart for the reception of senators and representatives has almost been entirely spent in listening to applications for office, which have become bewildering in volume, perplexing and exhausting in their iteration and impossible of remembrance.

A due regard for public duty, which must be neglected if present conditions continue, and an observance of the limitations placed upon human endurance, oblige me to decline from and after this date all personal interviews with those seeking appointments to office, except as I, on my own motion, may specially invite them. The same considerations make it impossible for me to receive those who merely desire to pay their respects except on the days and during the hours especially designated for that purpose.

I earnestly request senators and representatives to aid me in securing for them uninterrupted interviews by declining to introduce their constituents and friends when visiting the "executive mansion" during the hours designated for their reception. Applicants for office will only prejudice their prospects by repeated importunity and by remaining at Washington to await results.

Dearborn Sentenced For Life.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 11.—The West Newbury arson case, in which Warren S. Dearborn and Oscar R. Hubbell were charged with burning the residence of James L. Addison, causing the death of two men, was resumed yesterday. The case was given to the jury without argument, Dearborn not being represented by counsel. After being out 13 minutes the jury returned with a verdict of guilty. Dearborn was sentenced to imprisonment during his natural life in the state prison at Charlestown, one day solitary and the residue at hard labor. Hubbell will go free, having turned state's evidence.

Will Contest His Father's Will.

NEW HAVEN, May 11.—Yesterday morning the hearing in John McDowell's protest against the admission of his father's will was begun, and the case promises to be most sensational developments. John A. McDowell died a month ago, leaving an estate of $50,000. He had seven children, to whom he bequeathed $5000 each, except to his son John of "Miller's Falls, Mass., to whom he gave but $500, because of certain imputations sent to the deceased. The protest alleges that undue influence was brought to bear against the contestant.

The Mystery Cleared Up.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., May 9.—James Harrington and Otis Thresher, the two young men, who disappeared so mysteriously from here at the time the yacht Elsie was stolen a week ago, are in New York all right. The blood on the deck of the Elsie has been explained. Mr. Horton, one of the crew of the Minnie, who picked up the yacht, in jumping aboard, hurt his hand, which bled quite freely.

Dean Lawrence Will Accept.

BOSTON, May 8.—It is said to have been practically settled that Dean Lawrence will accept the bishopric of the diocese of Massachusetts. A member of the board of trustees of the Episcopal school at Cambridge told a reporter last evening that he was sure that Dr. Lawrence would never have allowed his name to go before the convention had he not been willing to accept the election.

Woman Suffragists' Festival.

BOSTON, May 10.—The woman suffragists of Boston gathered in Music Hall yesterday afternoon and evening, and held their annual festival. Among the speakers were Mrs. Laura Ormiston Chant of London, Mrs. Lucy Stone, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, Rev. George A. Gordon, Colonel T. W. Higginson, Mahlon R. Leonard of Waltham and Alfred S. Rae of Worcester.

A $100,000 Church Consecrated.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 11.—A granite church, costing over $100,000, entirely built, furnished and given to St. John's Episcopal parish by George P. Bliss of New York, a native of Northampton, was consecrated yesterday. This is the second church Mr. Bliss has built and furnished. The other one is on an island in New York harbor, and cost $80,000.

Died From Lockjaw.

BOSTON, May 9.—A death from lockjaw occurred yesterday at the Massachusetts general hospital, the victim being Miss Rasmussen Frederickson, 22 years of age, whose home was at Concord Junction. It is said that Miss Frederickson stepped on a rusty nail at her home last Wednesday, and that it penetrated her foot quite a distance.

Death of Mrs. Depew.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Mrs. Eliza Hagerman Depew, wife of Chauncey M. Depew, died at her residence in this city at 12:30 yesterday afternoon. Although Mrs. Depew was known to be seriously ill, this sudden termination of her illness was not expected by her family and those who were most intimately connected with her.

A Change For the Worse.

NEW YORK, May 11.—There was rumor about the Players' club last night that Edwin Booth took a turn for the worse during the day, and this rumor seemed justified when Dr. Sinclair Smith, the actor's regular physician, summoned Dr. Starr and Dr. Fremont Smith in consultation.

Backboys on Strike.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10.—The backboys of Wamsutta mills Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are out on strike, and unless the difficulty is speedily adjusted the spinners will be compelled to quit work for lack of roving. The strikers' grievance is insufficient pay.

A Case of Blood Poison.

LYNN, Mass., May 11.—Mrs. Minnie V. Smith, wife of William A. Smith, the pugilist, died here of blood poison after a sickness of several weeks. She was 18 years of age.

Rotined by Gambling.

NEW YORK, May 11.—William B. Vanduyke pleaded guilty to forgery and was sent to the Elmira reformatory. He says he owes his downfall to horse races.

Quick Drying Floor Paints are made in various ways, with resinous oil sometimes, and often with cheap varnish. If a floor paint could only be made with a fine varnish, it would be very attractive, both as to its quick-drying properties, high gloss and durability; but such a varnish costs four dollars a gallon, and therefore is out of the question. A paint made with varnish does not spread as nicely as one with oil. The Chilton Floor Paints are made with pure, kettie-boiled Linseed Oil, with as much turpentine Japan added as is consistent with durability. Too much dryer takes away from the life of the oil. If, for instance, the floor of the kitchen is to be painted, the first thing to do is to thoroughly wash it with soap and warm water, into which put a little ammonia, perhaps half an ounce to a pail of water. This will help remove all the grease. The floor should then be allowed to thoroughly dry. If you can conveniently do so, call in the services of a first-class painter. Paint one or two coats, as necessary, allowing first coat to harden and dry before second is applied. You can use the kitchen about twelve hours after the first coat is put on, and have the second coat put on several days later, if you wish. Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston.

The Phonograph as a Musical Instrument.

Some persons have expressed a fear lest the wide distribution of an apparatus capable of echoing all sorts of music, in a more perfect fashion than any music-box, might lead to the gradual extinction of piano-playing or violin-playing except for purposes of public exhibition, the phonographic echo of some great performer's work being so much superior to what most people could hope to accomplish. It seems to me that the contrary would be the result. Cheap phonographs, giving more or less perfect echoes of music, might make superfluous the painful attempts—painful to others, as well as to herself—of the unmusical young woman to master impossibilities. To the person of real musical instinct and capacity, the wealth of good music would certainly prove an incentive. When the phonograph goes everywhere, and phonographic music is cheap, the housewife can listen to Rubenstein as she darts the stockings in the evening, and get superb lessons at the great fountains of musical art, if she has any taste that way. There is no reason to suppose that it will be any more difficult to record a performance of "Die Meistersinger" than a recitation by Coquelin, or a Beethoven symphony under Bilow's baton. There is a good time coming for the poor man of good taste.—Philip C. Hubert, Jr., in May Century.

A Bright Lad,

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, confidential statement to us:

"When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor said that I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors thought that even if I did not die, I would never be able to walk, because I was so weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke under my arm. I hurt my finger and it gathered and threw out pieces of bone. If I hurt myself so as to break the skin, it was sure to become a running sore. I had to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has made me well and strong."—T. D. M., Norcutt, Kans.

FAITH AND REASON.

Two travelers started on a tour
With trust and knowledge laden;
One was a man with mighty brain,
And one a gentle maiden.
They joined their hands and vowed to be
Companions for a season.
The gentle maiden's name was Faith,
The mighty man's was Reason.

He sought all knowledge from this world,
And every world a-neighbor;
All matter and all mind were his,
But hers was only spirit.
If any stars were missed from heaven,
His telescope could find them;
But while he only found the stars,
She found the God behind them.

He sought for truth above, below,
All hidden things revealing;
She only sought it womanwise,
And found it in her feeling.
He said, "This earth's a rolling ball,"
And so doth science prove it.
He but discovered that it moves,
She found the strings that move it.

He reads with geologic eye
The record of the ages;
Unfolding strata, he translates
Earth's wonder written pages.
He digs around a mountain base
And measures with a plummet;
She leaps it with a single bound
And stands upon the summit.

He brings to light the secret force
In nature's labyrinth lurking
And binds it to his onward car
To do his mighty working.
He sends his message o'er the earth
And down where sea-gems glisten:
She sendeth hers to God himself,
Who bends his ear to listen.

All things in science, beauty, art,
In common they inherit;
But he has only clasped the form,
While she has clasped the spirit.

He tries from earth to forge a key
To open the gate of heaven!
That key is in the hidden heart,
And back its bolts are driven.
They part! Without her all is dark,
His knowledge vain and hollow,
For Faith has entered in with God,
Where Reason may not follow.

—Elizabeth York Case in Home and Country.

The First American Bible.

In 1683 the first Bible printed in America was published in Cambridge. It was unlawful to print an English version of the Scriptures, that right being a monopoly enjoyed by privilege and patent in England. The one printed in Massachusetts was Eliot's famous "Indian Bible," and although 1,500 copies were struck off they are quite rare, and "sealed books," as the tongue in which they are written is literally a "dead language," the tribe and all who had a knowledge of the dialect being long extinct.

Eliot's work is unique, being at once a monument to his piety, perseverance and learning. Its literary successor was Newman's "Concordance of the Scriptures." This was compiled by the light of pine knots in a log cabin in one of the frontier settlements of Massachusetts. It was the first of its kind, and for more than a century was admitted to be the most perfect, holding its place in public esteem until superseded by Cruden's, which it suggested.—Philadelphia Record.

Meaning of the Word "Either."

The legal meaning of the word "either" has been gravely argued in an English court of record. A certain testator had left property, the disposition of which was affected by the "death of either" of two persons. One lawyer insisted that "either" meant both, and in support of his views he quoted Richardson, Webster, Chaucer, Dryden, Southey, the story of the crucifixion and a passage from Revelation. The judge suggested that there was a song in "The Beggar's Opera" which took another view, "How happy I could be with either, were I other dear charmer away."

In pronouncing judgment the court ruled that "either" meant one of two, and did not mean both. He said that it might have that meaning occasionally in poetry, but never in an English court of record.—Exchange.

An Unexplorable French Pit.

The wonderful pit of Creus de Souci in France is situated in a sheet of recent basalt on the south side of the Puy de Montchal. The opening is 83 feet in diameter and 89 feet deep, but at that depth a hole about 10 feet wide communicates with a hollow 70 feet deep, at the bottom of which is a stagnant pool overlaid with carbonic acid, which forbids access to the water surface. The interior is a vast hollow, apparently formed in the basalt when semifluid, by an explosion of volcanic gas. The temperature falls from 54 degrees Fahrenheit in the open air to 84 degrees near the water.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Odd Echoes.

In a cave in the Pantheon, the guide, by striking the flaps of his coat, makes a noise equal to that produced by firing a 12-pound cannon. In the cave of Smellin, near Viborg, Finland, a stone thrown down a certain abyss makes a reverberating echo which sounds like the dying wail of some wild animal.—Exchange.

Smuggling Mushrooms by Mail.

An odd kind of smuggling is the sending of mushrooms by mail from Italy. They are of a peculiar kind, dried and are much relished by natives of that country in the United States. They come in small bags and are easily distinguished by smell.—Cor. Boston Transcript.

The soil of the state of Colorado in the irrigable parts is largely of disintegrated rock which is a perfect powder, highly susceptible to any vegetation it comes in contact with when heat and moisture are sufficient to insure the absorption of fertilizers.

Shellfish sometimes cause an itching skin eruption. Nausea, vomiting and giddiness are sometimes the indications that they disagree with those who partake of them.

Burton, when out of spirits, would go to the Thames, sit on the steps leading to the water and find pleasure in listening to the stories of the bargemen.

Kites rise against, not with, the wind. No man ever worked his passage anywhere on a dead calm.—John Neal.

It was said the city of Pittsburg now stands on ground once given in exchange for a violin.

The Nuisance of Inartistic Advertising.

We have occasionally regretted the monstrosities of street advertisements. Every vacant wall or boarding which is accessible to the bill sticker blazes with pictures which do not precisely educate the public taste, and are rather a serious addition to the minor evils of life. Well meant efforts have been made to improve these posters. The late Mr. Frederick Walker designed one for "The Woman in White." It was tolerably inoffensive, but far from an addition to the amenity of a blank wall.

Mr. Herkimer, if we are not mistaken, has tried his hand, and a well known picture of a little boy blowing soap bubbles, by Sir John Millais, is sufficiently familiar to the amateur. But the worst of it is that no such repeated airs, from whatever hand, are agreeable, much less the terrible man with the liver pad, compared with whom the lady with improbably long hair is a gem. This is not the end. The fields on each side of the railways grow monstrous advertisements—an offense to the eyes of travelers, and surely no real inducement to purchase the wares of the culprits.

A society has been formed to deal with these horrors, and the society protests against "diffidence and despondency." This is plucky at least, and so far deserves respect. It is a monstrous anomaly to spend public money on the improvement of public taste, and then to permit that taste to be debauched by "sky signs," advertisements in green fields, posters flaring on every vacant space.—London Saturday Review.

Casting Great Statues.

Stigmayer, a German goldsmith in the first part of this century, having an ambition to attempt larger works than any he had accomplished, went to Naples in order to see the casting of Canova's statue of Charles III, but was denied the sight of certain secret technical processes. Stigmayer found them out for himself nevertheless, and as soon as he went home made his first experiment on a statuette of Venus. Many delays occurred, and the excitement increased as the end drew near. By some mistake one of his assistants poured his molten metal into the airhole. Then the casting came to a standstill.

"The crowd of lookers on," writes the poor founder in his diary, "stood first dumb about me and then slipped out one by one and left me with my pain."

In a month a second casting was begun and failed. With unbroken courage he began the third cast, and on Christmas eve the metal was again poured in. It ran into the mold and spurted joyfully out at the air hole.

"Our joy knew no bounds," he declares. "We raised a loud cry of joy and embraced and kissed each other. Pasquale, the helper, kissed the head of Phidias coming out of the broken form and burned his mouth, for it had not had time to cool."—Youth's Companion.

Preparation the Important Factor.

The discovery by Edison of the carbon with which he perfected his electric lamp seems a happy accident, but such accidents never happen to common men. The great inventor scraped some soot from the blackened chimney of his laboratory lamp, and in a spirit of curiosity tested its properties. It proved to be the thing for which he was searching, but behind this fortunate discovery was a series of exhausting and exhaustive experiments with all kinds of likely materials, absorbing the energies of many months. The lucky hit rewarded the persistent will of a patient workman.

So with the young and obscure lawyer who conducts and wins a difficult case, as did Thomas Erskine in his elder's illness, or the struggling surgeon who has a sudden chance of distinction offered to him, he must have had a long and laborious preparatory training before he can profit by such an emergency. In short, a great opportunity is worth to a man precisely what his antecedents have enabled him to make of it.—William Matthews in Harper's Young People.

A Town in Pawn.

It may not be generally known that the little seaport town of Wismar, in the Baltic, is virtually in the same position as Montague Tigg's shirt—namely, at the pawnbroker's. It was in 1808 that Sweden pawned the town to the duchy of Mecklenburg for a round sum of money. It was then stipulated that the town should be restored to Sweden at the end of a century, provided the sum lent, together with interest, were paid back to Mecklenburg.

This sum is now said to amount to several hundred million marks, and apparently there is little chance of Wismar being able to pay it at the date fixed. This singular treaty has lain dormant in the archives of the municipality ever since it was made up to the other day, when, apropos of the concession of some land to the custom authorities, it was exhumed for legal purposes.—Million.

What They Knew About Washington.

An Everett schoolteacher whose little charges range in age from 5 to 7 years determined to celebrate the anniversary of the natal day of the father of his country by asking a few questions. This was the interrogatory which she propounded, "What can you tell me about George Washington?" And these are a few of the individual answers: "He was the savior of us all." "He was the owner of the soldiers." "He was the man who can shoot straight."

"He discovered this country." "He was the first man in the world." "He was the man who never bragged." "He is the only man in the world who never told a lie."—Boston Journal.

He Had Gone Prepared.

"Ask father," she whispered softly, and he kissed her as he headed for the library. Ten minutes later she glided in and there found the old gentleman nursing his great toe and freighting his groans with whispered oaths. Then she knew that the destiny of her sweet young life was yet in abeyance, and she took a quiet sneak without uttering a word.—Detroit Free Press.

Honest Advice For An Honest Medicine

Canker in the Throat and Stomach—
Headaches—Cured by HOOD'S.

"Thinking my testimonial may be of help to some suffering as I have, I want to write what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. A few years ago I was obliged to give up a good position on account of canker in my mouth, throat and stomach, causing me such agony I

Entirely Cured of the Canker and never was troubled again with it. I also improved very much in general health. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me a good appetite, kept the bowels in good condition, gave me good sleep at night. I have also been subject from childhood to

Severe Headaches, but now when I have one coming on, I can break it up in two hours by taking a few drops of Hood's Sarsaparilla every twenty minutes. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I do not have that tired feeling and can eat three square meals a day, and all kinds of food without any bad feelings afterward. I can honestly recommend it as an honest medicine, and advise all to try it." ESTELLA S. STEWART, 118 Quincy Street, Springfield, Mass.

Benefit of J. H. S.

The musical and dramatic entertainment at Stevens Hall Friday evening for the benefit of the Johnson High School, to judge from the unusually large number of people attending, must have afforded considerable material aid to that institution. The seating capacity of the hall was enlarged by an arrangement of the seats, affording greater accommodation. The stage was arranged to present to the audience a pleasing view of the interior of a cosy room, prettily furnished. The pupils of the school were most successful in their endeavors to please, each one performing the part assigned with grace and skill; while those who co-operated with the scholars contributed much to the real enjoyment of the audience. To the Principal, Mr. Flagg, who was most zealous in his efforts for the complete success of the evening, much credit is due. The programme follows:

Re-collected.

A virtual reinstatement of the disbanded Cochichewick Fire Engine Company was sanctioned by the Board of Engineers Tuesday evening, at the meeting held at engine hall about 7.45 o'clock.

Subsequent to the monthly and annual meeting, presided over by foreman Blake, at which only five members of the regular company appeared, the engineers opened a record for signatures, forty-five of which would be selected to constitute a fire brigade. There were forty-seven subscribers, only two unsuccessful candidates, one being Mr. Hartwell, assistant foreman under Mr. Blake, the other J. Meehan of Stevens Village.

As will be noticed the list of names accepted by the present board of engineers as well as the organization of the company is practically identical with that of the company before its disintegration. The board was favored by the following list:

W. J. Toohy, John H. Milnes,
Geo. H. Wilton, Andrew Winning,
P. Callahan, J. Towne,
J. Finn, J. Mocan,
Wm. J. Stewart, John Winning,
T. Broderick, Daniel Webster
F. A. Bateman, J. Herbert,
Wm. Ward, Jr., D. Casey,
Fred Winning, Geo. F. Royal,
R. McEvoy, P. Herbert,
J. D. McKobbie, J. H. Fish,
H. Gilien, I. Flynn,
G. M. Burns, J. Anderson,
Chas. Evans, W. P. Whitaker,
T. Eagan, J. Garvin,
Jos. L. Leighton, John Wilton,
M. Lawler, Frank Estes,
J. Wilcox, T. J. Ryan,
Stephen Garsed, P. J. Ryan,
Alex. McKinnon, Ed. Vignos,
P. Haley, Park Oddie,
Ralph Blake, M. J. Casey,
W. A. Evans.

Chief Johnson called for organization which was effected thus: Geo. F. Royal, foreman; T. Egan, 1st assistant; Geo. H. Wilton, 2d assistant; John Herbert, clerk; P. Haley, steward; standing committee, J. H. McKobbie, J. A. Towne, Park Oddie; leading hosemen, J. Winning, F. Winning, J. H. McKobbie, W. J. Stewart, J. Herbert; suction hosemen, W. Toohy, Frank Estes, John Wilton. The "amiability" of the engineers was recognized by a vote of thanks from their proteges, who after giving the former a few instructions regarding certain matters of repairs, dismissed the meeting.

The receipts of the benefit entertainment for the Johnson High School amounted to $57.25. The sum remaining after paying expenses incurred was $25.25. It is proposed to devote the greater portion of this sum for the purpose of buying such things as are needed for the school.

Obituary.

MICHAEL QUEALY.

Mr. Michael Quealy, a resident of our town for forty-five years, who has been in ill health for about three years, passed to his rest at his home on Maple Avenue, on Tuesday morning, aged 64 years. He had been confined to his room for about a month, when his hold upon life was released by consumption. Mr. Quealy was employed for many years—almost since his first residence here—by Davis & Furber, his occupation being that of a painter. In 1854 he went to New Orleans, La., for a brief time, returning to town in 1855.

He was born in Archers Town, Queen's County, Ireland. In 1856, he was united by marriage to Miss Mary Morrissey of Lawrence, and to them were born three sons and two daughters who died in early childhood. He was a member of the Catholic Friends Society, a charitable organization, for eight years. Mr. Quealy was an honest, upright citizen, a capable workman, a conscientious man, and a good friend and neighbor. A widow and one son, Mr. John Quealy, survive him.

Funeral services were held at St. Michael's Church Thursday morning at nine o'clock, and was largely attended by the relatives and many friends of this town. The solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. McManus. The pall bearers were: Messrs. William Quealy of Hyde Park, David Reagan of Salem, Peter Holihan of Lawrence, John Murphy, James Lawlor, and William Geaney of town. Among the many beautiful tributes were: A sheaf of wheat, inscribed "Father," from the family; star and crescent, Mr. John Morrissey and family of Lawrence; a cross, inscribed with "Michael" in blue immortelles on base, and with the words, "At Rest," upon white ribbon suspended from one arm, from Mr. Hans Christensen and family; ivy wreath, Miss Annie and Mr. John Dowling; sheaf of wheat, "At Rest," Mrs. Brian J. Manion; basket, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkinson, Lawrence; sheaf of wheat, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Mahoney, Lawrence; crescent, Misses Katie and Annie Barron, Lawrence; bouquet, Miss Jennie Rhodes.

The services were attended by a large number of relatives and friends also from Lawrence, Boston, Salem, Hyde Park, Roxbury, and Woburn.

The Memorial Day committee meet again this evening.

The Pacific National Bank has secured this transaction of the town's pecuniary business for this year.

The Selectmen, as a committee on Water Supply, meet this evening with civil engineer Loring F. Farnum of the firm of E. Worthington, Jr. & Co., 53 State Street, Boston, for the consideration of plans.

At the meeting of Ridgewood Cemetery Association Saturday afternoon, a number insufficient to constitute a quorum was present, and the meeting was postponed subject to the call of the clerk Mr. I. F. Osgood.

Rev. Charles Noyes sustained quite a severe injury to his eye while at work in his garden last week. He will be unable to use it much for some time, and a substitute will be procured for his pulpit for the next two Sundays.

The annual election of the officers of the Eben Sutton S. F. E. Co. occurred Monday evening. The officers and committees chosen are as follows: Foreman, John Burnham; assistant foreman, Frank A. Coan; clerk, A. W. Badger; treasurer, Martin H. Pulsifer; standing committee, George Rextrow, William R. Johnson, Horace E. Towne. The engineers received the following recommendations: Engineman, Enos S. Robinson; assistant engineman, Horace E. Towne; fireman, Martin H. Pulsifer. The resignations of Clerk John F. Kirk and Lewis C. Wentworth were received.

Bessie H. Bedloe, Burlington, Vt., had a disease of the scalp, causing her hair to become very harsh and dry, and to fall so freely that she could not dress her hair. After using Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts, her hair grew again, and she was able to dress it as usual.

Calico Party of U. L. F.

The springtime social pleasures practically ended with the dancing party, under the direction of the United Lady Friends, given at Odd Fellows Hall, Thursday evening.

Success followed the efforts of the promoters in every particular and even the weather so adapted itself as to make calico a desirable garment for comfort as well as adornment, for feminine attendance. About 50 couples were led through the movements of the march by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Somerville of Lawrence, and anticipated enjoyment became a reality as the evening hours progressed. An order of eighteen numbers, exclusive of fancy dances and encores, was gracefully completed at a seasonable hour. Refreshments were served during intermission. Mrs. Thomas Somerville admirably filled the position of directress, assisted by Mr. Charles Robinson and the following aids: Mrs. John Burnham, Mrs. George L. Barker, Messrs John Burnham, D. W. Sutcliffe, Fred Murch. Music, Partlow's orchestra. A number of Lawrence people were present.

"INDIGESTION AND Extreme Constipation." "My Friends Thought I Must Die."

"I AM NOW A CURED MAN." The following wonderful statement was sent us by C. R. Carpenter, Druggist, 140 Main St., Spencer, Mass.: "DANA'S SARSAPARILLA Co.: GENTS—Some ten years ago I commenced to feel INDIGESTION and EXTREME CONSTIPATION. I could not eat or sleep. I employed Physicians and tried Sarsaparilla, but continued to grow worse. I had a continuous headache, my skin turned yellow, and my friends thought I must die. My strength left me and courage also. This was my condition last February when I commenced to take DANA'S SARSAPARILLA. Before the first bottle was gone, there was a great improvement. My friends wanted to know what caused such a change in me. I replied 'DANA'S SARSAPARILLA.' I am now taking my third bottle and consider myself at the age of 30, after Doctors had failed, a CURED MAN. Yours respectfully, J. R. HERSEY, No. 36 Main St., Spencer, Mass."
